

Elite Serum Rx

Elite Serum Rx can be considered a break-through in skin care. Women have been searching for decades as a way to turn back the clock. Women buy products to find a quick resolution to their laugh lines and wrinkles. No product is going to miraculously turn back time, but there are certain products that work better than others. In the case of Elite Serum Rx, this product has been developed to allow women the benefits of improved under eye care without the expense of harsh surgeries. As a pharmacist, I personally tried the product. At 38 years old, I have noticeable fine lines and wrinkles in my eye area. Using Elite Serum Rx twice a day, I feel a slight tingle when applied. I take pride in only recommending quality products to my patients and this product is one that I would recommend. After reviewing and using the product myself, I feel comfortable saying this is a valuable product that is effective and safe. The consumer should not believe that this product will remove every wrinkle or dark spot, but instead, notice a visible improvement after continuous usage. With my personal use, I was looking for an improvement in fine lines. I saw an approximate improvement of 30% reduction of my fine lines after only 3 weeks of twice a day usage. Personally, my results are favorable as I have received many comments from colleagues that at my age I do not show wrinkles as a professional woman of my age would normally display.

Elite Serum Rx is a unique combination of ingredients, all of which have been tested and proven to work in combination for multiple results. These products are demonstrated to be effective on their own, but when combined, show specific results due to the uniqueness of the product combination. With Elite Serum Rx, the eye area will show decreased puffiness, less dark circles, and greater elasticity. Regarding the various products, these ingredients work to flush eye toxins for brightness, decrease the permeability of the capillary areas surrounding the eye for less puffiness, and reduction of inflammatory phenomenon. Elite Serum Rx contains Argireline, which is the brand name for acetyl hexapeptide-3. This peptide is a fragment of the SNAP-25 protein. This SNAP-25 protein is a substrate of Botulinum toxin, otherwise known as Botox. This ingredient allows the serum to be applied topically versus injected with the benefits of the correlation to Botox injections. Basically, this ingredient inhibits the muscles from contracting which causes fine lines and wrinkles. Another key ingredient is Hyaluronic Acid, or Hyaluronan. The human body has naturally occurring hyaluronan, but the body synthesizes this and breaks it down. Hyaluronan is a major component in skin, and it works to repair the skin after damage. The addition of this ingredient to Elite Serum Rx is clear, as it works to repair tissue damage in the eye area that has developed from years of exposure of the face to the elements. These are just some of the ways that Elite Serum Rx works for all of the benefits this product displays.

With no injections, Elite Serum Rx is applied to the eye area and is manufactured in the United States in a research laboratory and is absorbed into the skin quickly. Elite Serum Rx has not been evaluated by the FDA, and users should be advised that results can vary dependent on the individuals own proper usage of the product and other factors. Users of this product need to again understand, not to expect perfection, but rather, expect that a product that is quickly applied to the eye area to show improvements in wrinkles, elasticity, and an overall improvement in youthfulness all from one product.
